HENRY GRATTAN

In all Irish history, and in all English history there is no nobler figure than that of Henry Grattan. He has been compared to George Washington; but the comparison is not admissible. They were alike in their self sacrifice, their love of country, in their self assertion; but George Washington was a greater man than Henry Grattan. If oratory were as great a power as military skill, and it is not then there would be no presumption in the comparison. The world has yet to afford an example of saving a nation by talk. The late Lord Carlyle says, is the deliverer of his people. But there is no need for comparison in order to discover the ineffable beauty of Grattan's character, the sweet simplicity of his life, the unrivaled power of his oratory, the purity of his patriotism. He possessed all the grandeur of his time and none of its degradation. He has come to us out of a vanished and lurid age, without a spot upon his honor or a flaw in his reputation. It is pleasant to feel that hyperbole can do him no wrong, and that in all the world there is not one who dares to be his detractor. Whether we regard his private life or his public labors, the short time in his way or the manner in which he overcame them, there is nothing but goodness, courage, devotion, denial. Henry Grattan is the one man of whom Ireland may be unequivocally proud.

The first fact that attracted his attention was the condition of trade in Ireland. At that time England possessed the power under the law called Poynings of putting a veto on all Irish legislation. Irish trade interfered with English enterprise, and England prohibited all export of cattle to England. Ireland and the United States America—then a colony—kept up a trade with the colonies. Ireland opened a foreign trade, England prohibited foreign trade. The cattle trade killed the Irish began to make woolen stuffs. Mr. Brooke pithily tells the story. In The Lady Fanshawe in Ireland he describes the English ruler saying to the Irish serf: "You shall not weave your wool at home; you shall not sell your woolen cloth either here or abroad; we will put you under such disadvantages that it shall not be worth your while to supply your own necessities; you shall buy our cloth and frieze to clothe your own backs; you shall sell your fleece to us, and as it is our interest to have them on easy terms, you shall take whatever price we are pleased to offer." Ireland was in this condition when Henry Grattan entered the House of Commons in 1775. In five years he had won free trade, and was on the high road to legislative independence. The toil spent on the original design served to bring within grasp the greater object. As long as Poyning's law ruled in Ireland, Ireland must be a province. It was then that the magnificent struggle of George Washington gave to Henry Grattan the moral and physical power which won the triumph. England was at war with France was at war with America and, as Lord Chatham showed at war with herself. Grattan saw the hour. He was the man. He summoned the volunteers to arms, and 100,000 men obeyed his call. In the ranks were lords and peasants, Catholics and Protestants, men of every grade and every politics. They told the King that they were ready to defend the country against any foreign foe, which he was not, and they demanded the freedom of a capable people.

On the 16th of April, 1782, the royal decree declaring the legislative independence of Ireland. Its scene in the metropolis was one of [illegible] wonder. The Houses of Parliament, the Bank, Work of Ireland, are the pe[illegible] ornaments of the Irish capital. The streets were filled with the volunteers, arrayed in their uniforms. That pageant of a cut[illegible] was not more beautiful than the army of [illegible]— which had assembled to hear the joyful news and cheer' the leaders of the day—Flood and Yelverton and John Philpot Curran were in their glory. The Peers' gallery was ablaze with [illegible]. The college students sat in their places of privilege, and of honor arrayed in robes and the academic costume of the time. It was then, in the proudest moment of his life, in the flush of manly grace and classic beauty, that Henry Grattan rose to move the address of Independence. Shall I repeat words which have become familiar and are yet words which have amazed and delighted mankind? There was yet to come a day when that chamber would [illegible] when even the voice of Grattan would plead in vain, and his voice fall on deaf hearts. As he stood now he was the first man in the Kingdom. He [illegible] without dispute. He had defied power, cowed a nation and despotism had achieved a triumph which [illegible] marked for the head of all tri[illegible] by patriots in modern times. And all this he had done ere he was 35. Soon there came the first sign of storm—the assumption of the volunteers to dictate to the legislature. To this Grattan opposed himself with all his [illegible]. He had already offended Fox by [illegible] office. He had offended the King by [illegible] a peace in Phœnix Park. He had [illegible] Parliament in that he declined [illegible] by one-half. And now he was [illegible] with a physical force which threatened [illegible] liberty. It was a time of [illegible]. He quarrelled with Flood, who was [illegible] powers were hardly inferior to his own. He was an older man than Grattan and may[illegible] of the distinction which his quondam [illegible] had achieved. Grattan was satisfied with the Declaration of Independence. Flood [illegible] the formal yet absolute renounce[illegible] of the English right to legislate for Ireland.

[illegible] this apparent triviality there arose [illegible] fraternal recrimination which had [illegible] in history. Grattan's invective was [illegible], and Flood's was alive with burning [illegible]. It was the old, old story of [illegible]. Pitt saw the disunion out of which [illegible] would make a union of his own [illegible] to bribe. The House of Commons [illegible] a purely Protestant assembly. The Catholics were [illegible] unemancipated. One third of the members were nominees of patriots [illegible] commanded forty votes and there [illegible] for sale. Then came the fatal reform bill. That it was goaded on by the [illegible] and encouraged only to be crushed [illegible] the necessity of English power [illegible] the appalling cruelties of the time [illegible] of the massacres of an army which [illegible] to spoke the words of its commander [illegible] himself formidable to everybody but the enemy [illegible] had no idea that Pitt had advanced [illegible] negotiations for purchase. Indeed [illegible] to believe that in a house of 300 [illegible] there would be found 12 ready to [illegible] their country. But 116 were placemen and sycophants, some were conveniently absent, twenty accepted peerages, twenty were [illegible] raised to the peerage, seven obtained [illegible] sinecures, more than two hundred salaried offices, more than two millions of pounds sterling were paid in hard cash. It was indeed a magnificent scandal. Doubtless the fortunes of Ireland were for a time restored. It was the 16th of January 1800 when Parliament had assembled. The debate was upon Sir Lawrence Parsons' address. The house was crowded. The galleries were illuminated by the belles of Dublin. The Peers' gallery was full. The members were in their best array and all the talents were in exercise. Burke and Plunket then rose against the motion. George Ponsonby and Arthur Moore and the historic band of [illegible] followed in succession. The [illegible] was filled with men anxious to know the fate of their nation.

As morning dawned there arose a [illegible] which amazed the anxious legislators. Grattan was borne to the door of the chamber. From lip to lip the cry of [illegible] day he had been returned for [illegible]. We know. He was ill and quite worn out. But when he heard the news he rose from himself from his cot, he bade his wife farewell as he thought forever, and lifted into a carriage he dashed on for Dublin. He was supported from the street to the house. As he stood at the bar, we are told, a prophet who was a ghost the assembly instinctively arose and covered. Henry Grattan uttered [illegible] to the [illegible] and took the oaths. As he did the last [illegible] Castlereagh with the pale face of [illegible] ready to strike down Grattan in the [illegible] obeisance. Is it not a fine one for a picture. It has been treasured directly by De Quincey, his boyish memory for he was there being, and by his forceful genius. It has been drawn by Lecky and by O'Connell, and by scores of men since his time. But the truth is the speech of Grattan which must have been unpremeditated is that which no man can lesser be. Read even at this distance it is irresistible. The speech and the triumph with which it was delivered have made the scene as memorable as beautiful an episode in the history of man. Had it not been taken there could have been no Union, there must have been a verdict for Grattan. As it was the series of speeches which he uttered rank first among the first ever spoken by man. His final appeal preceded the vote by a few hours. Meanwhile the murderer was busy with his pens and his purses and these were proof to eloquence. Grattan closed his speech in an apostrophe which I think, never has been excelled. Yet I do not give up the country. I see her in a swoon, but she is not dead. Though in her tomb she lies helpless and motionless, there is on her lips a spirit of life and on her cheek a glow of beauty—

> Thou art not conquered beauty's ensign yet
> Is crimson in thy lips and in thy cheeks
> And death's pale flag is not advanced there.

While a plank of the vessel sticks together I will not leave her. Let the courtier present his flimsy sail and carry the light bark of his faith with every new breath of wind. I will remain anchored here with fidelity to the fortunes of my country, faithful to her freedom, faithful to her fall. With these words it may be said that the career of Grattan was over. Some years after the act of union was consummated he was prevailed upon to enter the Imperial Parliament to aid the struggle for Catholic emancipation. He sat as member for Dublin and for thirteen years he fought in the cause of his choice. In 1810 he was defeated by a majority of two and thus the relief of Catholics was postponed for ten years. He died on the 6th of June 1820 and was laid in Westminster Abbey near the friend of his youth, Fox and the enemy of his country, Pitt.

A WARNING TO BRIDES

It is impossible not to feel a lively sympathy for the bereaved bride whose husband is snatched from her at the foot of the altar or in front of the private desk of the officiating justice of the peace as the case may be. Especially is such a bride to be pitied when she loses through her own carelessness a husband whom she has caught after protracted and skillful effort. Such is the misfortune which has just befallen a Massachusetts bride, and her story is one which conveys a wholesome lesson to expert but over confident widows.

The bride in question, while yet a blooming and energetic widow, met with an elderly gentleman of eighty years of age and an indefinite quantity of bonds and stock certificates. In spite of the opposition of his family she convinced him that it was his duty to marry the trusting and ingenuous woman who had lavished upon him her priceless and experienced affections. It is not a matter of very great difficulty for a skillful widow, or other astute woman, to book an elderly gentleman. The real difficulty is in landing him. When once he is fastened by his promise he must be played with great care, or he will escape before he is finally gaffed by an efficient marriage ceremony. Until then he is always prone to seek refuge in inaccessible places, from which neither coaxing nor petting can dislodge him, or to suddenly break his promise and dart away into some secret and secure hiding place. In the present instance the Massachusetts widow played her prize so firmly and tenderly that he was finally successfully landed. Unfortunately she then relaxed her vigilance, never dreaming that he would so far revolt as to leap back into his original celibacy, and accomplish his escape. Let other widows note her carelessness and its consequences and save themselves from disappointment and humiliation.

No sooner was the marriage ceremony ended than the happy bride directed her husband to run back to his house and bring his bonds and mortgages so that they might begin to enjoy a happy honeymoon. The bridegroom went but as soon as he had entered his house he was seized by his relatives and safely locked up. He had made a will in their favor and they had no intention of allowing it to be unmade by a new and unwelcome wife. His prolonged absence disturbed the bride, who sent a carriage to hasten his return, but the carriage came back empty and the driver's mind was too much confused by strong language, broken crockery, and pails of water to explain the reason why his presentation of a written order to deliver the bearer (1) elderly bridegroom had given rise to so much vigorous discussion. The bride at once comprehended the true state of affairs, she armed herself with a pistol and a stout Irishman and stormed her husband's prison. The attack was short but fierce. From his remote dungeon the imprisoned husband could be heard cheering on the assailants, but there were too many bolts on the front door, too many determined maiden sisters, and too much available crockery in the house to render the capture possible by the assaulting column. The bride was beaten back after performing prodigies of valor with a [illegible] poker against the parlor windows, and she has since appealed to the law for assistance. A suit for the forcible theft of a valuable husband whose photographs is annexed to the complaint and marked "Schedule A" is now pending, and it remains to be seen whether a Massachusetts court recognizes the right of property in husbands or whether it looks upon them as res inter alia acta and hence incapable of being made the subject of trover and conversion.

The lessons conveyed by this affecting narrative hardly needs to be emphasized. It is a warning to widows never to let a freshly caught husband pass out of their hands [illegible] to carry him off the moment the marriage ceremony is completed and to keep him locked up until his spirit is broken and his rage of his relatives has subsided. Had the Massachusetts bride pursued this course she would have had no suffering, no trouble in order to bring her husband flocking to some body else's two pair back when she let him remain shut below his prison window. A ladder would fall to the first floor, and his pocket would be full of bank bills. Besides, a sterling writer with the pale face of a consumptive would be found to write letters to the relatives, and to the bridegroom, explaining that he was well and happy, and that he would return to his home in the course of a week or two. Such is the history of the case.

An Olympian poisoned about 300 crows one day last week by mixing strychnine with potatoes and spreading it out for them to eat.

A TRYING SITUATION

[Burlington Hawk-Eye.]

Mr. Bilderback we feel authorized to state will not attend divine service this morning. The old gentleman is we are pained to learn laboring under a very distressing frame of mind being greatly incensed against ministers on general principles. He doesn't like to talk about this matter but we learned all about it despite his reticence. It seems that last Sunday morning he was dozing comfortably in his pew in the church of which he is one of the main sleepers when he became aware of an uparising clothing skimmily down the aisle with a collection basket in his hand. Mr. Bilderback braced up into an erect position, cleared his throat in a ponderous tone of Roman firmness, as one who should say:

Which is a bishop? and as the basket was extended toward him he felt in his trousers pocket for his wallet. It wasn't there and as he withdrew his hand and felt in the other pocket he felt that the eyes of the congregation were upon him and that was all he felt for he certainly didn't find any pocket. Look. He nodded the basket man to wait a second and leaned over to the left while he felt in the right inside pocket of his coat from which in his increasing nervousness he drew half a dozen checks which rolled over the floor with a rattle that sounded in his ears like the thunders of the Apocalypse and made them hotter still. Then he leaned over the end of the pew and felt in the other inside coat pocket and drew out a bundle of letters, a lot of postal cards, a circus ticket, a photograph of an actress, a funny story printed on a card, a pocket comb and a long string and his face grew so long his breath felt like a hot air blast. Then he squared his elbows and went for his vest pockets and strewed the pew cushion with quill toothpicks, newspaper scraps, street car checks, a shoe buttoner, some lead pencil stubs and crumbling indications of chewing tobacco, a bit of sealing wax, a piece of licorice root about an inch long and three or four troches. Then he leaned forward and stung to madness by the smiles which were breaking out all around that church worse than the measles in a primary school room, dived into his coat tail pockets and drew forth a red silk handkerchief two apples a spectacle case, a pair of dog skin gloves an overcoat button and a fine assortment of bits of dried orange peel and lint. Then he stood up, devoutly praying that an earth quake might come along and swallow up either him or the rest of the congregation he didn't much care which and went down into his hip pockets from which he evolved a revolver a corkscrew a cigar case, a piece of string, a memorandum book and a pocket knife. By this time Mr. Bilderback's face was scarlet clear down to the waist and he was so nervous and worked up that he nearly shook his clothes off, while the man with the basket couldn't have moved away if he had died for staying. And when Mr. Bilderback in forlorn despair once more rummaged his hand into the trousers pocket where he began the search, the congregation held its breath, and when Mr. Bilderback drew forth the very pocket book which he had missed in his first careless search, and had since all but stripped to find, there was a sigh of relief went up from every devout heart in that house. But Mr. Bilderback dropped into his seat with an abruptness that made the windows rattle and registered a mental vow that he wasn't going to come out to church again to be made a fool of by a man with a long handled dunning basket.

CLOTHES

One who writes in an English journal on 'Clothes' declares that 'men do but ask to see their mothers, sisters, and sweethearts daintily clean and fresh in all their arrangements and appointments, and as pleasing to the eye as modesty and moderation permit. There is something really charming in this picture simple as it is. Daintily clean and fresh in all their arrangements and appointments.' We may concede that, for great occasions ladies may elaborate a little on this basis, but say for the breakfast table or for all ordinary home occasions, how delightful it is to see our womankind arrayed in fresh and simple attire—no crumpled hair in unwholesome reminder of last night's elaborate confiture—no silks or other once costly fabrics now soiled and dilapidated—no formidable wrappers loud of color and wonderful pattern—no twice used linen—no shutterly shawls that horror in untasteful households—no touch of dishabille in the slightest or least suggestive degree.

Unhappily the picture is much too rare. There are many women who persist in wearing, at the morning meal and upon other domestic occasions old gowns or apparel that has been banished from the drawing room. Now a lady may be dressed in more rich and costly fabrics at one time than another but there should be no degrees of neatness or order of purity or of freshness. The morning dress may be a wholly inexpensive one but a grease stain or a rent is just as much an offense at breakfast as at dinner. In fact if there must be a stain we would rather see it on the evening silk than the morning muslin which should always have the supreme sentiment of freshness and daintiness. Many women have little idea of how greatly they shock the tastes and really endanger the affections of their husbands by their unseemly domestic apparel. There is not a man of sense and refined feeling anywhere who would not prefer some chaste and simple adornment for his wife in the morning to any extreme of splendor at the evening ball. Let a woman by all means dress brilliantly on those occasions that render it proper we have no desire to abridge her privileges nor battle her instincts in this particular but we claim that it is important for her if she values her household serenity that she should give equal heed to her customary domestic attire. The female who goes about the house in tidy dressed has no right to the title of woman. She is with out those marks and indications by which she can be classified. We reject the notion that a person can really be a woman who is without those dainty instincts for sweet and pure apparel that bright maids pertain to the female sex. Such an individual has lost the characteristics, the qualities, the refinements, the distinguishing elements of the daughters of Eve and as she has not by this damnation gained any characteristic of the masculine sex she evidently belongs to some as yet undescribed variety of the human family.—Appleton's Journal.

A MONEY MINISTER. The following paragraph appears in an exchange: "A man in West County has not been tolerably well for his subscription for the last seven years." He must possess all the christian graces and forgiveness in addition, must such tact and discretion as will enable him to settle with all parties in the parish on all points, giving offence to none, should possess a will of his own but have with all the vanity must be orderly, punctual and of dignified manners, affable to all, mother's darling, after the wedding is over turning his back upon the poor man and English Church sentiments preferred. He will go to preach first class sermons and do first class work at second class compensation, salary should not be so much the object as the desire to be a zealous laborer in the vineyard, should be able to convince all that the most miserable sinners without giving offence, each sermon must be short and compact and self fulfilling. His garments must be dress coat but popular and free from the eloquence peculiar to newly ordained. They [illegible] should be young enough to be enthusiastic but possess the judgment of one of ripe years and experience. He only who possesses the above qualifications need apply. To such a one will be given steady employment for a term of years. For further information apply to any member of the congregation.

The grand jury thus describes the Seattle jail. We find the place such that the law is kept in as decent a manner as the circumstances permit, but are of the opinion that it should be declared a nuisance, and we so declare it for the confinement of human beings over 24 hours.

OREGON

There were three funerals in Salem on Friday last.

Miss Myrtle Miller is going a lecturing on society in Coos county.

The Roseburg people will try to raise $2,000 to celebrate the 4th of July with.

The treasurer of Clackamas county has paid the county's share of State taxes.

South Salem has just organized a Sunday school with Samuel Smith as superintendent.

The Mail Iron Schooner will be moved from LaGrande to Union the county seat, this week.

A writer in the Farmer thinks the culture of the honey bee is one of the omitted industries in Oregon.

There are one hundred and seven convicts in the Oregon penitentiary. This is a good showing for our population.

The people of Grande Ronde valley are now going for railroad connection with Walla Walla as the next best thing.

The schooner Harriet Rowe went ashore on the Heads at Port Orford, last Friday. She is a total wreck. The cargo was saved.

The quickest time ever made by a steamboat between Salem and Eugene is said to have been made by the City of Salem last week.

The steamer Cordelia from the Coquille was loading in San Francisco for the Coquille river when the steamer Empire left on the 29th ult.

A stirring religious revival is progressing at Scio. Nearly all the people in that vicinity are said to be becoming interested in the meetings which are held nightly.

N. L. Goodell has commenced action in the fifteenth district court of California against W. R. Simpson, Jay Pattle and I. G. Cockrell to recover the sum of $50 000 damages for his arrest as being connected with the North Bend safe robbery in Coos county.

Mr. W. R. Willis showed the Plaindealer a fine specimen of gold this week from quartz taken from the Lucky Queen mine and assayed by him. The rock tested—and it was not a choice selection—will give a yield of $755 40 per ton, a much larger yield than hundreds of ledges worked in California and Nevada.

We are informed that the Ankeny farm near the mouth of the Santiam river in Marion county, containing 5 000 or 6 000 acres of land with a large quantity of machinery, stock growing crops etc. has just been sold to a Scotch company for $150 000. Citizens in the forks of the Santiam are discussing the importance of having a bridge over the Santiam near the ferry to Marion. They will probably, when the time comes, unite in a petition to ye county fathers, to wit the county judge and commissioners of both Linn and Marion counties for county aid in that improvement, and also ask business men of Salem and along that road to come to the front and defend their interests by liberal aid in the good cause.

A letter from Fort Somter, Baker county, says: "Among the enterprises which are likely to soon add to the wealth and fame of this section is the ditch which was lately completed by Downie Bros. The ditch is over ten miles in length and covers all of the extensive mining claims of Downie Bros. on the southwest fork of Powder river. These gentlemen are now making the necessary preparations to commence mining in the spring on a much more extensive scale than ever."

On the night of the 3d inst. the store of George Cumman of Empire City was broken open by a Heathen Chinee. While John was assorting Cumman's jewelry Cumman took a hand himself and fired two shots at John with his revolver. John jumped through the window and fled, leaving behind him a silver watch chain and a bracelet which he had taken from the store, he also dropped his coat which Cumman captured. John got away with two gold watch chains and a silver watch. No arrest.

The head men of the Indians at the Umatilla Agency wish to send a delegation of Indians on to Washington to talk with the President. They see that they are hemmed in on all sides by the whites, that the grass on the reservation is being eaten out and destroyed and that their people are being debased by contact with the whites. They feel that they must have a new location set apart to them, and that it would be to their advantage to have something of the kind done but they are fearful that if they leave the present reservation they will not be protected in their new home, and have misgivings that in a few years they will again be surrounded by white settlers and will again be crowded out. They say however that if they can go to Washington and see the President and get the assurance that they will not be molested in their new homes by the whites direct from the President's mouth they will be satisfied to have a new reservation assigned them.

The Standard says: The storm that raged throughout Union and Baker counties last Saturday was the most terrific we have experienced this winter. The weather was not intensely cold, the thermometer marking about freezing point but the snow that had fallen during Friday night, to the depth of two or three inches was light and dry, and the wind which blew a hurricane, filled the air with drifting snow until it was impossible to see any distance in the valley. Geo. Stanford who drives the stage from here to Baker left at 6 o'clock and after proceeding about two miles and encountering deep snow drifts and a blinding storm, was compelled to turn round and put into harbor. After remaining until about noon he again started this time accompanied by Bob Leite as a helper. By taking circumdances through fields and fences he succeeded in reaching Union about 1 o'clock. Although informed by Quimby the driver on the down stage that it would be impossible to get through the canyon he determined to make the attempt, and after proceeding five or six miles his horses positively refused to face the blinding storm and he was compelled to turn back and come to Union where he remained until morning. No blame can be attached to the A. W. & S. Co. for not getting through. Horses and men composed of flesh and blood could not perform the task. It would require cast iron men and gun metal mules.

A story is told of two Vermont farmers who are not grangers. They induced their wives to join and report to them before they would agree to become members. Now when they will they cannot. Two black balls greet every application. Meanwhile the wives go regularly and triumphantly to every meeting of the grange and the men stay at home to mind the babies.

POLICE COURT ROMANCE.

A RUNAWAY COUPLE'S ADVENTURES IN TWO HEMISPHERES.

[From the New York Times.]

A thin slight prettily clad young woman stood at the iron barred window of the magistrate's office in the Essex Market police court-room looking drearily at the slatted windows of the prison and at the cheerless flags of the court yard. She was fashionably and elegantly dressed and over her suit of neat and tasty brown she wore a cloak that was trimmed with warm white squirrel fur. A black hat with a red bird for its adornment was on her head and a white veil was over a face that was strikingly beautiful and interesting. A long braid of auburn hair hung down her back below the waist. As she sat at the side of Mr. John C. Morrison the proprietor of an intelligence office at 109 South street she told the story of her wrongs in elevated German, which Mr. Morrison translated into English substantially as follows:

Miss Julia M. Homann's home is Cologne Prussia. A few months ago she became acquainted with a young man in that city who introduced himself as Lieut. Rostin. He is handsome, tall and graceful and of exceedingly pleasing address. At this time Miss Homann was engaged to be married to a Prussian nobleman, and her father, who is proprietor of a great lace establishment in Cologne was anxious that the marriage should soon be celebrated. Miss Homann did not love her titled suitor and the gallant officer soon won her love, and the two plighted their troth soon afterward. There were many stolen moonlight meetings thereafter, and at length the lovers ran away to the city of Homburg the young woman preceding her lover by a few hours in the flight. He furnished money and there was a room provided for her in a hotel when she reached Homburg.

JOURNEYING IN EUROPE.

A few days later the couple went to Geneva as Lieut. Rostin, as he called himself, had promised that in Switzerland she should live like a queen. In Geneva Miss Homann was taken sick and her lover's money was soon exhausted. He was so reduced that he borrowed $300 of her, and going to a gambling house lost $150. His next pawned her wardrobe which had cost $2 000, and soon the 1,800 francs which he got for it was well nigh exhausted. With the scanty remainder the couple journey to Frankfort, Rostin assuring his companion that, on his word as an officer, he would borrow money of his father and pay his debts. He was arrested in Frankfort. Then he telegraphed to his father in Breslau that he must have $450 dollars as he was in the hands of the police. With the money thus obtained the couple went to Leipsic. There the girl wrote a letter to her father, and he replied that if she would return to her home everything should be forgiven. She decided to go, but soon changed her mind, and then the pair went to Liegnitz, and there the lieutenant acknowledged that his name was not Rostin, but Ludwig Triest, and that he had been a clerk in Frankfort, and that now he was a speculator. He left her in Leipsic and went to Liegnitz, whence he wrote her affectionate letters, calling her his darling wife. At length he returned to Leipsic and told Miss Homann that his father had sent him no money, and that he must go to Breslau, in which city his father lived, and that there he could get a situation. His clothes had become shabby, and he was heavily in debt.

But instead of going to Breslau, the couple went to Homburg, and stayed with a married sister of Miss Homann, the latter telling her sister that she was on a visit. Trieste took a room in a chief hotel, and was constantly flitting about the windows of the house in which Miss Homann was. She, meantime, wandered listlessly through the chambers of her sister's house, and there was such a strange light in her eyes, and her behavior was such that the neighbors began to talk about her, saying that she must be insane. Soon the sister, who was in business in Homburg, made a business trip to Paris and Trieste openly visited Miss Homann. He then proposed that they should in which country, said he, "we can live independently, and no one can do us injustice. We can there be married, and my father, who insists that I marry a wealthy old maid against my wish, will not be able to coerce me."

The couple went to Bremen and on the way they were arrested and their trunk was taken from them as security for the payment of long standing debts. They were lodged in a police station for the night and the next morning a letter from the brother in law of Miss Homann instructed the police to hold her until he arrived to claim her. Meantime Trieste had exacted a promise from Miss Homann that she would stand by him in every emergency and that she would follow him to the end of the world if necessary.

Robert Trieste, the father of the young man met them in Bremen, and was astonished that a highly educated and refined girl like her should run away with such a swindler as his son. Said the father:

"I wish that Steamer was going out to morrow, and then I would send you both across the ocean."

On the next day Miss Homann saw her brother in law and he told her Trieste was a scamp, and that she must have no more to do with him.

On the next day the father of Trieste visited her, and said: "I wish you would follow my son as you are the only person in the world who has any influence over him. I hope you will stay by him and make a man of him, and I will pay all debts." Trieste was released from the police station. Then Miss Homann went to Homburg with her brother in law. After that the couple met in Homburg and thence they went to Bremen and took passage by a steamer to America. On the voyage Trieste introduced his companion to the passengers as his intended wife.

On their arrival in New York the couple took lodgings in a Tenth street boarding house and there Miss Homann's companion said that she was his wife. She brought him again and again to make her indeed his wife, saying that if he did not she would either commit suicide or go out into the street and look up a situation. Trieste replied that she was bound to him body and soul and that if she abandoned him he would kill her.

LOOKING FOR AID.

Miss Homann went first to the German Consul asking for protection and at length the couple procured lodgings and board at 300 Grand street, in the house of Mrs. J. Gerstel. Miss Homann insisted upon a marriage ceremony but Trieste put her off with excuses. At length unable longer to endure the situation she set out to find employment. She went to the office of Mr. Morrison and he through his acquaintance with her father in Germany, was enlisted in her case. He took her to his home on New Years Eve and there she has since been living.

Through Mr. Morrison's efforts Trieste was lodged in the Essex Market prison.

There was a large party in the magistrate's room at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon and Miss Homann sat by the side of Mr. Morrison and waited for the arrival of Justice Otterbourg, who had been engaged to marry her to Trieste. The justice arrived just as the evening shadows were making fantastic figures on the wall and Trieste was at once sent for. As he walked in Miss Homann trembled from head to foot, and hiding her head in the arms of Mr. Morrison, gasped for breath. "Oh, there's a horrible pain here," said she pressing her hand to her heart, and she shuddered.

Trieste a handsome young man twenty six years old walked into the room with a theatrical air and looking inquisitively at the occupants. As he had nearly reached the rear of the room he caught sight of the weeping girl on the sofa and springing to her side he clasped his hands and begged her to speak to him. "Oh, Julie, Julie, turn your face to me," he said, "and don't be angry." He grasped her chin and forced the face of the sorrowing girl toward him but she repelled all his advances.

THE NUPTIALS.

"Will you marry Miss Homann?" asked the justice, and Trieste, after a long-silent, mental consideration said: "Yes I will but it's two edged that cuts both ways, this American justice."

Miss Homann who was weeping signified the certificate with her face averted and then Justice Otterbourg in solemn tones performed the ceremony. Then Mrs. Trieste her face covered with her heavy veil started to go out of the room but her husband called her back and tried to talk with her but she broke away from him and running into the court room, sank on the platform at the back of the judicial desk. The throng in the court room crowded around her and lifted her to her feet, and Trieste following her said tauntingly, that all the desire she had in marrying him was the expectation of a part of his father's estate. She repulsed the assertion with some scorn and breaking away exclaimed:

"What! for the sake of a few dollars link myself to such a villain as you bind my name to that of a disreputable family and bury my honor in the grave of your infamy! Oh my God my God!" she cried, clasping her hands to her bosom, and again she fell on the platform. Then she hastily arose and, with a wild gesture ran into the street, and Trieste stood dazed and blank gesticulating in the center of the room. Then he went out, saying that all the stories that had been told by his wife were false and that it was all a conspiracy to defraud his father, who is wealthy.

Mr. Trieste before his marriage, signed a note promising to pay to his wife $1,300 that he had obtained from her.

"She has gone her way and I'll go mine," said Trieste, as he went out into the street.

THE INTERCONVERTIBLES

It appears Senator Booth of California has gone into the interconvertible currency business and has evolved a scheme of the currency which he thinks will place the finances of the country on a solid foundation His interconvertibles are treasury notes and gold bonds This is certainly better than the Kelley plan because a gold basis is better than a paper basis

Senator Booth is a very clear headed man and generally puts his propositions in a shape to be comprehended but we confess the inability to see how this interconvertible plan would improve the currency It may have merit as an auxiliary in adjusting the machinery for distributing the currency but how can it do more? Promises to pay gold are no more than promises to pay greenbacks unless it is contemplated that the promises are to be redeemed A promise to redeem a gold note with a gold bond and a gold bond with a gold note is simply a promise to pay paper of one kind for paper of another kind Since the bond finally payable in gold and not paper would have a greater value than a bond to pay greenbacks and the convertible note would be correspondingly more valuable than the greenback But how is the bond to be made available in the business of the country? Senator Booth thinks the national banks are unnecessary and should be abolished as useless wheels in the machinery of government and that his interconvertibles would enable the government to distribute the currency directly If the object can be accomplished as well without the aid of the banks, he is right in proposing their abolishment But can it? The banks are based upon the idea that persons possessing capital which they do not desire to use in productive enterprise, in manufacturing and building railways, etc will convert this capital into United States bonds and deposit them as collateral security to indemnify the government against loss, and will then take from the government and put in circulation such an amount of treasury notes as is safely secured by the bonds If the currency of the country were actually gold coin, this machinery would be as Senator Booth suggests, unnecessary, as in the United States the government leaves the working of the mines of the precious metals to private enterprise In such case, the people being the owners of the gold, and the government having nothing to do with it but to coin it into money, and no interest in it beyond the pay for coinage, the currency would distribute itself in the ordinary course of business But such unfortunately is not the situation The gold coin in circulation is not sufficient for the demands of the business of the country, and the deficiency is supplied by the issuing of paper currency It may be said that is evidence that the business of the country is itself inflated, and consequently unhealthy. Perhaps this is so But the issuing of a large volume of paper money to meet the extraordinary requirements made on the government by the war brought business into its present condition and it is easier now to say it is inflated than to point out the way to contract, or disinflate it It is the part of statesmanship to meet the case as it is, and not to plunge the business interests of the nation into ruin in the attempt to get back at a single stride to the condition in which we were before the war

The issuing of these treasury notes is an act of the government's I must be so To leave it any other hands would be to flood the country with worthless paper emanating from irresponsible sources The value of paper currency, whether issued by the government or by private banks, is a fictitious value These treasury notes are not, like gold coins, measures of value independently of the stamp on them Their stamp is their value. The government creates the property that is in them That property belongs to the government until the notes are put in circulation, until they are taken up and paid for by individuals But they are the money of the country, the money used in business, the money employed in carrying on manufactures and building railways and ships. How are the people who do the business to get them for use Are they to go separately to the government, and mortgage their lands and goods for them? Is every man who wants to build a mill, or open a grocery store, or start a machine shop, to go directly to the treasury of the United States with his collaterals, and borrow the money he needs or buy a few interconvertible 3 65 bonds paying therefor in lands and chattels such as he now uses in obtaining money from the banks? Such a process would result in such general confusion and derangement as would be equaled only by the peculation and fraud that would attend it at every step

Why the money of the banks should not be simple treasury notes, instead of the notes of the respective banks has always been to us a problem But how the entire system of banks can be swept away while the treasury note currency remains, without adding to instead of subtracting from, the machinery of the financial system, is a greater problem and one upon which none of the interconvertible contrivances sheds a single ray of light

THE OSWEGO IRON FURNACE

The iron furnace at Oswego is now in full blast and turning out about ten tons per day of excellent iron A visit to the works gives one such an idea of their importance as can not be acquired from reading or hearing of them The ore used is mostly of the species known as bog ore and produces about ten per cent of metal The iron manufactured at this furnace is superior to most brands of imported pig and is adapted to use in the manufacture of machinery where strength is a principal object It is fine grained soft and tough some of it appearing almost like wrought iron

The expense of producing this iron is nearly twice as great as in producing pig iron at the East notwithstanding the fact that the ore is abundant and tolerably convenient The fuel is charcoal which costs much more than the stone coal used at the East There charcoal is used only in making the finest qualities of pig The use of charcoal is an advantage to the iron, but a considerable item of expense Limestone which costs at the East about one dollar per ton and of which a large amount is necessary, is bought at Oswego from San Juan Island costing at the works six dollars Labor costs almost twice as much here as there Thus the expense is increased in every item Then to get the pig metal to market freights here are much higher than there So it will be seen the enterprise here is carried on under difficulties of a very serious nature The only security the producers have against being driven out of the business by cheaper products from the East is the expense of transportation to this coast The great distance the Eastern article has to be carried just about compensates for the difference in cost of production, so the Oregon manufacturer competes upon about an equal footing with those abroad

A large order is now filling at Oswego for the Central Pacific Railway Company, who will use it for car wheels For this purpose the best chilled iron is necessary The iron from this furnace is also used extensively by foundry men in San Francisco, as well as in Portland there being no iron manufactured in California

The importance of this manufacture will not be fully developed till the demand for iron in railway construction becomes urgent and constant Then rolling mills will be added to the works, and its value to the community will be more than doubled

NATION OR CONFEDERACY

The question raised by the resolutions recently introduced in the Senate by Senator McDonald is whether the United States are a Nation or not. The resolutions themselves are vague and obscure and are susceptible of as many constructions as the famous resolutions of 1798, which have been the subject of almost as many controversies as the moral law The resolutions in effect declare that the United States are a Nation only in the manner and to the extent prescribed by the Constitution—that is if the United States are a Nation, they are if they are not, they are not What action the Democratic majority may take on this question is uncertain for their policy is of the nature of divine peacefulness in that it passeth human understanding But like the Illinoy White Man's Meeting immortalized by John Hay they may resolve it 'till the cows come home without changing the opinion of the people on this subject If ever there was anything in the world finally settled it is that these United States are a Nation of people, and not a Confederacy of States No logic of words can reverse the conclusions wrought out by the logic of events, and those who are inclined to adhere to that by gone delusion might as well pause, and bid good bye to it forever The question had disturbed the country for years prior to the war When it was made evident that no words could settle which interpretation of the Constitution ought to prevail, the matter was left to the arbitrament of war The results of the war decided it forever and from that decision, consonant as it is with reason and justice there is no appeal It is worse than folly to attempt to revive it The people of this country North and South are, and wish to be one, single united people—one nation The idea of State Sovereignty that is of the power of a State to enact laws at variance with and superior to the laws of the United States, will never again delude them The idea that a State may set aside a law of Congress will never more be entertained by the people of this country

The supreme court of Illinois lately rendered a decision which the New York Tribune says knocks the bottom out of the system of option contracts in board of trade transactions. The case decided grew out of the famous wheat corner of August 1872 and was on appeal from the circuit court of Cook county, which gave judgment for Culbertson Blair & Co in a suit against John B Lyon to recover an option contract The supreme court considers the question whether the rule of the board of trade relative to the enforcement of such contracts is contrary to the laws of the land and opposed to public policy and the affirmative is held, the court ruling that the contracts are not bona fide transactions but mere wagers on the price of grain on a given day—in short, a gambling transaction and hence unlawful The practice of making these pretended purchases and sales but in effect nothing but wagers is condemned as illegal and injurious and one which requires to be suppressed The judgment of the court below is therefore reversed and the cause remanded The contract held to be illegal is of the same class as those known as puts which are much in use in stock speculation If we do not mistake this is not the first decision against their validity

PLUMMER FRUIT DRYER.

AS A PROOF OF WHAT I HAVE HERETOFORE stated to the people of Oregon, I give below a letter from the Plummer Fruit Drying Co of East Portland. After the close of business of 1875 fully endorsing it after using it one entire season and as a proof to substantiate what they say they now contemplate putting up another Dryer of the same capacity of the one they now have which will increase their capacity to five hundred bushels of apples per day Having now located here in Portland for the purpose of supplying the demand for Fruit Dryers in Oregon and Washington Territory, I can supply those dryers at a cost of from $2 000 to $4 000, according to capacity, Warranted to dry from 8 to 16 bushels of apples per hour at a small cost for labor and fuel These machines being so cheap and simple in construction, they cannot fail to supersede all other known machines I would also say to the fruit growers that I have invented a Machine (and am now waiting for a patent) that will cut and spread the fruit on the trays with a very small amount of labor I also have invented a Peach Parer that is on an entirely new principle paring soft as well as hard, does its work well with great speed and slices and pits the fruit ready for the Dryer in the best possible manner and at a great saving in quantity of fruit W S. FRUIT DRYER TESTIMONIALS.

EAST PORTLAND Jan 4th 1876

MR. W. S PLUMMER—Dear Sir As this is a time when all are much interested in Fruit Drying we think that in justice to you and for the information of the public it is but right and proper that we should give all the information that we can Now after having operated your Dryer during this season we feel warranted in saying that for the amount of money invested we still believe as we did from the start that your Dryer is the best Dryer yet introduced into this country The capacity of the Dryer we find to be about 8 (eight) bushels per hour The Dried fruit we claim to be as good as any though perhaps not as much bleached as the 'Alden' Fruit and we are satisfied that we can produce Dried Fruit at less expense than the Alden The stockholders of our Company manifested their confidence in the Plummer Dryer at our meeting last Saturday by a unanimous vote to increase the capital stock $12,000 (twelve thousand dollars) for the purpose of adding one more Dryer to the present one and making other improvements for next season We will further say that we believe that by an improvement made by the patentee in the Beater and Pan that there will be an increase of capacity and a saving of Fuel

H HANSON President
J S NEWELL Secretary and Superintendent

EAST PORTLAND Dec 13 1875

MR PLUMMER—Dear Sir I have been watching both the Alden and your Fruit Dryer the past season so as to determine which was the best Machine for drying Prunes I visited the Alden Dryer at Oregon City and examined the Prunes dried on that Machine, and I have also examined several lots dried on your Machine at East Portland and my opinion is that your Dryer is far the best Machine for drying Prunes My reasons are these Your Machine dries them without bursting or cracking, while I noticed that a great deal of the fruit dried on the Alden Machine was bursted open, and after a Prune is bursted in drying it is worthless for market as a Prune therefore I can recommend your Machine for drying Prunes or anything else Yours truly,

FAST TIME—The Yreka Journal says Mr Nottingham and son of Chicago passed through Yreka on Sunday on their way to Portland Mr Nottingham is interested in a fast freight line on the Columbia river and will probably locate at Portland during the summer

SAILOR'S STATEMENT—One of the crew of the ill-fated Orpheus is now an inmate of the Good Samaritan Hospital, receiving treatment for injuries sustained by a cask of hardware falling on him, while assisting to unload the vessel in this port He is very emphatic in stating that cries of distress were distinctly heard by the officers and crew of the Orpheus at the time of the unfortunate collision with the steamer Pacific. He also says that they saw the blue lights—signals of distress—while they were yet near the sinking steamer, and though it was well known that the Orpheus was uninjured the captain turned a deaf ear to the call for help and steadily bore away from the scene of horror

SECTION OF U S JURORS—During the present session of the County Court the order for selecting jurors to serve for the United States courts was changed so as to substitute Lane county for Washington and jurors were drawn from the latter county to serve for a previous term Yesterday morning Marshal Malarkey and U S Commissioner Wilcox started for Albany, where in connection with the commissioner for Linn county, they will select fifty names from

SAILOR'S STEADFASTNESS.—One of the crew of the ill fated Orpheus is now an inmate of the Good Samaritan Hospital, receiving treatment for injuries received by a cask of hardware rolling over him, while assisting to unload a vessel in the bay. He is very emphatic in telling that cries of distress were distinctly heard by the P. and crew of the Orpheus after the unfortunate collision with the Pacific. He also says that they saw the blue lights, signals of distress—while they were yet near the sinking steamer, and that though it was well known that the Orpheus was mistaken, the captain turned a deaf ear to the call for help, and steadily bore away from the scene of horror

SELECTION OF U. S. JURORS—During the year the order for selecting jurors to serve for the United States courts was changed so as to substitute Linn county for Washington, as Linn were drawn from the latter county to serve for a previous term. Yesterday morning Marshal Malarkey and U. S. Commissioner Wilcox started for Albany, where in conjunction with the commissioner for Linn county, they will select fifty names from the assessment roll. Having accomplished the work there Malarkey and Wilcox will proceed to Dallas, Polk county, where, assisted by the U.S. commissioner for that county, will select fifty more names from the assessment roll.

SHARPER TAPS.—The citizens of Portland should take the following sensible suggestion from the Albany Democrat: "It is generally understood up the valley that Portland will be the place for the grand 4th of July celebration for the State of Oregon and the week containing the 4th of July next. If the citizens of the metropolis will take the proper steps and give the people of Albany a fair chance a good "show" during that week, the people up the valley, will take advantage of the excursion Brandt's generous offer will help to swell the large assemblage of people ever congregated together on the northwest coast.

RECORD TIME DATES.—For the first time since the close of navigation on the Upper Columbia, the steamer Idaho reached The Dalles on Tuesday Since the river was frozen the steamer has been unable to ascend higher than Crate's Point, five miles below The Dalles, owing to an immense jam of ice above During this temporary blockade passenger, mails, express matter and freight have been conveyed to and fro over the portage on stages and wagons. It is not only a gratification to the O. R. N. Co. to have uninterrupted navigation between the Upper Cascades and The Dalles, but it is a great public convenience

NOT DISMAYED.—It was announced in a San Francisco exchange, a short time since that during a heavy and protracted gale which prevailed at that port the schooner Hera was severely damaged by being chafed against the dock. A few days ago we were shown a letter written to a gentleman in this city by the mate of the Hera. He says that there is no truth in the statement. He was on board all during the gale, and the schooner's side was not damaged at all from chafing The Hera is now on her way from San Francisco to Victoria with a miscellaneous cargo.

LITERARY SOCIETY ORGANIZED.—Among a number of ladies and gentlemen who are possessed of literary taste and culture, a society has recently been organized in this city. The following are the officers of society President, I. A. Madrum; vice president, Mrs F F. Victor; secretary, Geo. H. Himes treasurer, Miss Rabin. Tuesday evening a meeting was held, during which Dr. J B Pilkington gave a recitation, Syl. C. Simpson read a paper, and several dramatic scenes were enacted

BOILER BURST DOWN.—Last evening the large boiler used to drive the machinery of Mr. William Crawford's flouring mill at Lake Oswego, which was destroyed by fire last fall, was brought down to this city on the steamer Reliance. This boiler will be overhauled and sent down the Columbia, where it will be used in connection with one of the several extensive salmon fisheries. The boiler escaped with comparatively little damage, considering the fiery ordeal through which it passed

VANCOUVER.—From a late number of the Vancouver News we learn that a young girl a resident of Vancouver, is going to Oregon to join a brother in Portland, fell in with a confidence man at Kalama, who disappeared with her money nearly $3,000, on the pretense of buying drafts on San Francisco. She had her ticket however, and continued on her journey though her constant weeping excited the deep sympathy of the other passengers on the overland train.

UNDER ARREST.—D J. Quimby was arrested yesterday afternoon on a warrant issued by Judge Adams and sworn to by Chief Lappans charged with having attempted the crime of rape on the person of Miss Catherine C Taylor He was taken to Judge Adams' office, and in default of bail was committed to the county jail, but having given bonds for his appearance in the sum of $1,000 he was released The examination will probably take place this morning

SUITS FOR DAMAGES.

Papers instituting proceedings for the recovery of damages, have been filed in the office of the county clerk as follows, which actions are to be tried at the coming term of the State circuit court

Mrs Mary F Harrett has commenced a suit against Arthur Fabre for the recovery of damages in the sum of $10 000 The complaint sets up that the defendant maliciously spoke uttered and published of and concerning the plaintiff certain false and defamatory words greatly to the injury of her (the said plaintiff) good character and reputation

J H Newman has instituted proceedings against Samuel Brown and Perry W Davis, superintendent of streets in Portland for the recovery of $20 000 damages Substantially the complaint avers that it is an action for the recovery of damages to the amount named for injuries received by the plaintiff on the 24th day of December A D 1875 by falling from the sidewalk on to the south half of lot 5 in block 76 the said defendant Samuel Brown being then the owner of said lot and the said Perry W Davis being the duly elected and qualified street commissioner of the city of Portland and the said fall and damages to plaintiff being caused by the neglect and carelessness of defendants in omitting and neglecting to place barriers along the line of said sidewalk and lot and allowing the same to be and remain in an unsafe and dangerous condition all of which both of the defendants well know

Since the filing of the papers in the above entitled cause the plaintiff Mr Newman has died from the effects of the fall According to a statutory provision the amount of damages is limited to $5 000 The statute provides that the sum sued for in an action for damages wherein a person's name appears as plaintiff who is deceased shall not exceed the amount mentioned

An action for damages has been commenced by Mr I F Morse against Messrs Chas H Perkins and Geo Coggan for $10 000 The complaint charges that the defendants maliciously and without probable cause procured and caused the arrest of plaintiff and also his imprisonment for the period of ten days

Another suit for damages—$5 031 has been instituted by Frederick Payne against John Leon and Henry Holdriver for maliciously and without probable cause prosecuting the plaintiff, and having continued the malicious and prosecution up to the 20th day of January, 1876 by having, on the said 12th of January, 1876, maliciously and without probable cause, procured the arrest of this plaintiff, and imprisoned him for the space of eight days thereafter

BRIEF NOTES.

A pile-driver is being constructed below the city by Mr Smith, the bridge contractor, which is to be used on land

Ground work for a new sash and door factory has been commenced on the block at the northwest corner of E and North Second streets

Suppose it should rain six working days out of every seven, and produce wet Sundays during the Centennial! That would be to inaugurate an era of umbrellas

If the roots and buds do not now think it time to start business for the Centennial year then they must be beyond the power of persuasion by warm wet weather

The steamer Dixie Thompson did not reach here last evening until nearly 7 o clock The detention was occasioned by taking on a band of cattle at Dillon's Landing

For the information of "Enquirer" we would say that a small boat is run all night from the foot of Stark street, and also one at foot of H, which runs until midnight

Chas Roebuck, who voluntarily surrendered himself as a vagrant a few days since is quite sick and yesterday was removed to the poorhouse on order from Chief Lappens

After a long examination in police court, Tuesday afternoon Dr Kong, a Chinese Esculapius, was discharged from custody He was arrested a few days ago on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon

Sounds as from a piano, emanated from the room over the postoffice on Monday evening Upon inquiry, we learned that it was a meeting of a Literary society A queer place the custom house building) for a piano They have things in style up there

SOCIAL EVENTS.

Tuesday evening next the members of Tiger Engine Co No 6 will give a social dance at their hall on Fourth street

A fashionable and select party was given last evening at Turn Halle by a number of young gentlemen of the city

Next Monday evening a grand complimentary party will be given at the Limnet Guard armory, by the officers of that popular military organization

A social party will be given Saturday evening at Amateur Music Hall Numerous invitations have been extended and a pleasant time may be expected

Grand preparations are in progress for the military ball to be given by the Washington Guard, at Turn Halle on the 22d inst When the Guard undertaker to do anything they make it a success and such may be expected of the forthcoming affair

To morrow evening the Waverly Club hold their soiree at Turn Halle The preparations are about complete for a most agreeable time The attendance promises to be quite large the invitations being generally accepted Novelties in the way of music are to be introduced for the first time

MILITARY NOTES.

A general court martial will convene at Fort Vancouver, W T Thursday February 17 1876 at 10 o clock A M or as soon thereafter as practicable for the trial of such persons as may be properly brought before it The following officers have been detailed for duty Major R. SOCIAL PERSONAL AND OTHERWISE

Our regular correspondent sends the following dated Feb 9th

Mrs J I Parrish is recovering slowly from her recent severe illness

Mr and Mrs P L Willis left this morning for a trip over to Washington Territory to be gone for a few weeks for recreation

The ladies of the Congregational Church are making extensive preparations for their forthcoming entertainment, to take place on the 22d inst

Young Ramsey was buried yesterday by Anniversary Lodge No 13 I O O F of this city of which he was an honored member at the time of his death

Candidates for county offices are beginning to make themselves known as well as numerous others whom will be pleased to receive votes in the next legislature

It is hinted there will be some more suspensions of students in the Willamette University before many days unless others suspend once and their ways somewhat

The ladies of the Christian Church held a social last evening at the residence of Leo Willis Esq which was largely attended and thoroughly enjoyed by those present Hot oysters and coffee formed the feast

A pleasant reunion of the Carr family took place at the residence of J C Carr Esq, near Butteville, on the 4th inst the 31st birthday of the old veteran There were about forty of his descendants present and the occasion was one long to be remembered by the participants

In a late number of the Red and Gray, a sporting journal published in New York City we find the opening chapter of a series of articles on The animals and scenery of the Northwest from the graphic quill of J Marshall Murphy formerly connected with the press of Portland They are descriptive of Oregon in more especially and are calculated to be of great benefit to our State, the writer having traveled extensively over it and become thoroughly posted in that of which he writes

W W Martin the well known jeweler of this city has on exhibition in his show window one of the finest pieces you read of It is an open-face silver watch which has noted time now for over one hundred years and is still ticking away as industriously as ever It was owned and carried at the battle of Bunker Hill by an ancestor of Dr E R Fiske of this city, by whom the old timer is now owned and highly prized We doubt not it will find its way back to the Centennial as it rightfully should

A man named Lyon was arrested near Silverton and brought to this city, charged with the crime of adultery From what we can learn he became acquainted some time since with a young lady named Shrum, respectably connected in this county, and learning incidentally that she was possessed of some means he seemed anxious to get away with it Her friends offered no strenuous objections to her marrying him, a little ceremony that he seemed in no ways anxious to have performed He went out to Silverton on Monday last and the girl who on several occasions has run off with him, met him at the hotel They remained there until Tuesday evening when, learning that the officers were after him, he eloped remaining out over night The girl this morning took the stage for Salem and when a short distance out of town, Lyon appeared by the wayside and took passage, and but a short distance further on was overtaken by an officer who at once placed him under arrest He was brought to this city and having no money will probably be boarded by the county in the Hotel be Shaw until action is taken in his case by the next grand jury Lyon is, we believe a resident of Portland Young Lyons will be taken to Silverton for his preliminary examination.

THE FRENCH PARLIAMENT

The Parliament of France, which was elected in the winter of 1870 71 to make peace with the Germans and get them out of the country on any terms has at last adjourned sine die In view of the dissolution the Journal de Debats of Paris gives the dates of the election to the various legislative assemblies in France from 1789 The States General were summoned by Letters Royal dated the 25th of January 1789 and they met at Versailles on the 5th of May following The legislative assembly was established by the constitution decreed on the 3d of September 1791 and accepted by Louis XVI on the 14th of the same month The national convention was summoned on the 10th of August 1792 and its members were elected during the first ten days of the following month The Council of Elders and the Council of Five Hundred created by the constitution of the Directory year 3 (the 22d of August 1795) were elected during the last fortnight in October 1795 and completed by the National Convention at its sitting of the 26th of October Elections annually to renew these Councils were held on the 1st of April 1797 1798 and 1799 The day after the establishment of the Consulate November 9 1799 these two councils appointed two legislative Commissioners composed of ninety five members each drawn from their own bodies After the promulgation of the constitution of the 14th of December 1799 which established the Senate a Corps Legislatif and a Tribunat the first Senators were elected on the 24th of December 1799 and on the following day the remaining Senators and the members of the Corps Legislatif and Tribunat were elected The first renewal of the Corps Legislatif and Tribunat occurred on the 27th of March 1802 Later on the Tribunat was suppressed on the 19th of August 1807 Under the Restoration the first nomination of Peers by Louis XVIII in conformity with the Constitutional Charter occurred June 4 1814 During the Hundred Days an imperial decree, dated Lyons March 11 1815 dissolved the Chamber of Peers and on April 22d by an additional decree, Napoleon I established a Chamber of Hereditary Peers appointed by himself, and a Chamber of Representatives elected by the country The electoral college met to elect the Deputies on the 10th of May 1815 and the Emperor nominated the Peers on the 2d of June just before the battle of Waterloo At the second restoration a royal decree dated June 13, 1815, dissolved the Imperial Chamber and established a Chamber of deputies composed of 402 members who were elected on the 21st of August On the 17th of the same month Louis XVIII appointed a Chamber of hereditary Peers On the 5th of September of the same year the Lower House was dissolved and re elected on the 4th of October Partial elections were held on the 11th of September 1819 April 24 and November 13 1820 The Chamber of Deputies was dissolved on December 24 1823 The Electoral Colleges of Arrondissements met on February 25 1824 and those of Departments on March 6th On November 5, 1827, the Chamber was again dissolved and re elected on the 17th and 24th of the same month A decree of May 16th 1830 again dissolved the Chamber, and summoned the electors for June 23 and July 3 12 and 19 Scarcely elected the Chamber was once more dissolved on July 25 and the colleges were summoned for September 4 and 13 but Charles X and meantime fled and Louis Philippe ascended the throne On August 9 under the Monarchy of July general elections for the Lower House were held on July 5 1831 June 21 1834 November 4, 1837 March 2 1839 July 9, 1842 and August 1 1846 Under the Republic of 1848 general elections for the constituent Assembly were held on April 2 and June 4 1848 those for the Legislative Assembly on the 13th and 14th of May, 1849, After the coup d'etat of December 2 1851, and in conformity with a decree of February 2 1852, general elections for the Corps Legislatif were held on February 29th Under the second Empire general elections to the Corps Legislatif were held on June 21 and 28 1857 on May 31 and June 1, 1863 and for the last time on May 23 and 24, 1869 The elections to the National Assembly decreed by the Government of National Defense were held on Feb 8 1871 the greater part of the complimentary elections coming off on July 2d of the same year If the present Assembly dissolves on March 8 1876 it will have lasted five years and twenty-five days

Certainly, any one who reads through the above statistics will allow that France has since the great Revolution indulged not only in plenty of elections but also in a variety of representative assemblies and forms of government Nor is it possible to predict how many more she will submit to and overthrow before the close of the century

NAMES OF COUNTRIES

The following countries, it is said, were originally named by the Phœnicians the greatest commercial people in the world The names in the Phœnician language, signify some characteristic of the places they designate Europe signifies a country of white complexion so named because the inhabitants are of lighter complexion than those of Africa Africa Asia signifies between or in the middle from the fact that geographers placed it between Europe and Africa

Africa signifies the land of crops or corn It was celebrated for its abundance of corn and all sorts of grain Siberia signifies thirst or dry—very characteristic Spain, a country of rabbits or conies It was once so infested by these animals that they sued Augustus for an army to destroy them Italy a country of pitch from its yielding great quantities of black pitch Calabria also for the same reason Gaul modern France, signifies yellow haired, as yellow hair characterizes its inhabitants

The English of Caledonia is a high hill It was a rugged mountainous province in Scotland Hibernia is utmost or last habitation, for beyond this westward the Phœnicians never extended their voyage Britain the country of the great quantities being found on it and adjacent islands Greeks called it Albion, which signifies in the Phœnician tongue either white or high mountains from the whiteness of its shores or the high rocks on the western coast

Corsica signifies the footsteps of men, which it resembles Syracuse signifies bad savor so called from the unwholesome marsh on which it stood Rhodes, serpents or dragons which it produced in abundance Sicily the country of grapes Scylla, the whirlpool of destruction Charybdis the holds of destruction Ætna signifies a furnace or dark or smoky

SICKNESS—A BUSINESS IN DISGUISE—WHEAT SALES HIGH ETC

INDEPENDENCE, Feb 7, 1876

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

There is a good deal of sickness prevailing all over this county hardly a family being exempt from it The doctors pronounce it a typhoid fever but what seems strange is that it affects only young men and women from about 15 to 24 One family has lost three grown young persons

I think it is in the Bible or I have heard it somewhere (I don't know which) that a blessing comes sometimes disguised as an affliction and we have a case of it here A Mr Hinkins had two of his sons attending the deaf and dumb school at Salem when they both were stricken down with the fever so prevalent all over that school He took them both home to this county and attended to them with great care but while one of them got well quick the other remained very low caused as the doctors said from the eruption of the ear which was continually running But what was the joy of the father when he perceived that his son showed signs of being able to hear It moves him as yet to be spoken to or any other harsh noise but he can hear even the snapping of the fire The boy is getting now slowly better and the father has great hopes that he will be able to hear here after Mr Hinkins says he would not mind the expense and trouble he has had, if this is a fact

At [illegible] yesterday's [illegible] has there been much less activity in financial and trade circles than is apparent at present though why it is so [illegible] tell On reasons as suggested is the [illegible] penny lack of [illegible] at our whar[illegible] and the consequent dullness in the produce [illegible] which has thrown its influence over all other branches of business The outlook however is not unmixed with gloomy features and with the opening of the spring trade in the spring work the times will improve and life and activity will be infused into commercial matters One thing seems to be generally admitted and that is that the supply of capital available for the purposes of trade is much better than it was at a corresponding date either in 1874 or 75 and as far as this fact goes towards modifying the prospects of the future there is nothing to fear

The London Economist of the 11th ultimo has an article reviewing the statistics of mercantile and other business failures in the United States during the first nine months of the last year and since the great panic of 1873 The general conclusion of the article is that the process of reconstruction has been nearly if not quite completed and that a real revival of industry founded on real values is becoming an actual or at least a near event We quote as follows

But it is this persistence and downward diffusion of the mercantile discredit which is producing the really effective effects on wages and prices and it may be safely said that the melting short of this diffusive and searching discredit would suffice to remove from the cost of production all fictitious and artificial inflation Looking at the 10 000 failures and the 18 millions sterling of liabilities which have been recorded from January 1873 to September last and remembering that besides these there are probably as many more in each of private disarrangement we can understand that in the United States the process of purification has been nearly completed and that a real revival of industry founded on real values is becoming an actual or at least a near event.

Different kinds of Currency.

Gold coin is still quite a rarity in the Atlantic States, notwithstanding the large amount shipped over and during the past few months. The Government is, of course the largest holder, and the banks and importers control the remainder The importers are the principal dealers in the article Their use of coin is in the payment of foreign indebtedness and duties on imports At the public sales fresh supplies are obtained but as these have been suspended for the present there is some difficulty in getting enough gold coin to pay duties on imports An occurrence of this kind happened in Baltimore a few days ago There was a large sale of $400 000 worth of sugar in bonded warehouse in that city to Philadelphia refiners but before it could be released the coin necessary to pay the duties had to be purchased and brought from a neighboring city

The United States mints were quite busy on small silver coins last month The Philadelphia Mint turned out 318,000 half dollars 210 000 quarter dollars, 14 500 double dimes and 2 060 000 dimes The Carson Mint turned out 112 000 half dollars, and the San Francisco Mint 2,500 000 dimes and 72,000 half dollars. The coinage of dimes last month was probably the largest in the history of the country All this work is preparatory to the resumption of specie payments by the displacement of the present fractional paper currency It is to be hoped that whatever additional legislation is needed to make this step successful will be promptly granted by the Congress now in session The people in most parts of the Union have been so long without handling hard currency it is thought that coin can never be used again as a circulating medium However there is no harm in trying the experiment and the withdrawal of fractional paper would of necessity bring silver into circulation A result which would also tend to relieve the communities of this coast of the over supply of that vanity of money

Oregon Wheat Surplus.

Having no produce exchange to employ competent persons to traverse the State each quarter and ascertain the surplus products on hand the farmers export and merchants of Oregon are compelled in a great measure to rely on such random reports as may reach them from various sources and make their calculations accordingly The result of such reports is always less satisfactory than figures derived from actual observation would be but it is nevertheless well for all who are interested in the trade to know as nearly as possible what proportion of the crop is yet to be moved But the present we can only approximate Comparing the total crop of the harvest of 1874 with that of 1875 as shown by the shipments abroad up to date it will appear that there are at least 10 000 tons in our State for export. Shipments of the crop of 1874 reckoning the flower as so much wheat showed a total of 3 210 180 bushels while those of the harvest of 1875 up to last New Year showed an equivalent of 1 998 490 bushels wheat. Since January 1st, the shipments have been equal to 540 836 bushels or a total for the harvest year of 2 849 326 bushels. If the surplus of last harvest was only as great as the year previous there would still be in the state only about 17 000 tons for export but all accounts have agreed in estimating the surplus for 1875 as 25 per cent greater than in 1874 which if correct would give as the quantity yet in the state and to be shipped out or carried over to another harvest fully 11 000 tons and we have little reason to believe that nearly so much that is a surplus in wheat at 1 flour over and above the wants for home consumption is not yet held in our state

Shipping Intelligence

There is nothing new in the city of shipping movements arrivals or departures The only vessels in port are the two steamers and the steamer Fanny Telfair There are three or four vessels suitable for the grain trade now at Victoria and them may be taken for this port

POND'S EXTRACT

"Heaz, for I will speak of excellent things."

PONDS EXTRACT—The great Vegetable Pain Destroyer. Has been in use over thirty years, and for obstinateness and prompt curative virtues cannot be excelled

CHILDREN. No family can afford to be without Pond's Extract. Accidents, Bruises, Contusions, Cuts, Sprains, are relieved almost instantly by external application. Promptly relieves pains of Burns, Scalds, Excoriations, Chafings, Old Sores, Boils, Felons, Corns, etc Arrests inflammation, reduces swellings, stops bleeding, removes discoloration and heals rapidly

FEMALE WEAKNESSES. It always relieves pain in the back and loins, fullness and pressing pain in the head, nausea, vertigo

IN LEUCORRHŒA it has no equal All kinds of ulcerations to which ladies are subject are promptly cured Fuller details in book accompanying each bottle

PILES—blind or bleeding—meet prompt relief and ready cure No case, however chronic or obstinate can long resist its regular use

VARICOSE VEINS. It is the only sure cure

KIDNEY DISEASES. It has no equal for permanent cure.

BLEEDING from any cause. For this it is a specific. It has saved hundreds of lives when all other remedies failed to arrest bleeding from nose, stomach, lungs, and elsewhere

TOOTHACHE, Earache, Neuralgia and Rheumatism are all alike relieved, and often permanently cured

PHYSICIANS of all schools who are acquainted with Pond's Extract of Witch Hazel recommend it in their practice We have letters of commendation from hundreds of Physicians, many of whom order it for use in their own practice In addition to the foregoing, they order its use for Swellings of all kinds, Quinsy, Sore Throat, Inflamed Tonsils, simply and chronic Diarrhœa, Catarrh for which it is a specific. Chilblains, Frosted Feet, Stings of Insects, Mosquitoes, etc Chapped Hands, Face, and indeed all manner of skin troubles

POND'S EXTRACT Gives Soreness, Roughness and Smarting like Cuts, Eruptions and Pimples. It removes the worries and itchiness which wonderfully improve the Complexion

FOR TESTIMONIALS Pond's Extract, Ointment and Catarrh Remedy see what is said of them by Bishops, Clergymen, Editors, Actors, Singers, Authors, Statesmen and Soldiers, in our Pamphlet, a copy of which will be sent free to any address on application

CAUTION. Pond's Extract is never sold in bulk or by measure, nor in any imitation bottle. Only genuine in our patent bottle, which bears our name blown in the glass, and our trade mark, a buff wrapper with our name and picture of bottle thereon. Refuse all others, as they are worthless. Sold by druggists and dealers.
